

MISTAKES, RULE BREAKING & CONFUSION

A Photography Workshop with Jonny Briggs - Archisle Photographer in Residence 2017

Saturday 9th & 16th September at Société Jersiaise - 9.30am - 2.30pm

Can something good come from breaking the rules?

Can mistakes help you in the creative process?

Can something good come from confusion?

This course will use photography to provide an arena for questioning and discussion. We will attempt to photograph blind, challenge ourselves to create what we consider a boring photograph, attempt to take what we think is a bad photograph, resulting in group discussions on our findings. We will make rules for photographing that others have to follow. We will then break those rules. We will create fragmented photographs of ourselves that when placed together like a puzzle, form distorted portraits. We will make photomontages that merge bodies with landscapes and will embark on photo walks to take some of the projects. Humour is welcomed.

Jonny studied at Chelsea College of Art and the Royal College of Art, London. Awards include Saatchi Gallery UK/raine Finalist, a 2014 Paul Huf nomination (Brett Rogers), Foam Talent 2014, the 2011 Conran Award for Fine Art, a Lumi Honorary Art Award (2011), Saatchi New Sensations 2011 Winner, The Catlin Prize finalist 2012, and a NESTA Creative Sparks Award.

Solo exhibitions include Photoforum Pasquart Photography Museum in Switzerland 2017; N Contemporary at MC2 Gallery, Milan 2015; Marie-Laure Fleisch, Rome 2015; Julie Meneret, New York City 2014, Simon Oldfield Gallery, London 2013; FaMa Gallery, Verona 2012; and White Project, Paris 2012. Jonny's new commissioned project is currently on show at the Saatchi Gallery, London in the exhibition 'From Selfie to Self-Expression' the world's first exhibition about selfie culture throughout history.
